

UNIVERSITÄT
BAYREUTH

“The Future of Philosophy and Economics in the Age of AI”

Thursday, 26 June 2025 | Panel Discussion 16:15–17:45 | H 21 (RW II)

Participants

- Diane Coyle, University of Cambridge
- Silvia Milano, University of Exeter and MCMP at LMU Munich
- Mirco Schoenfeld, University of Bayreuth
- David Stadelmann, University of Bayreuth
- Matthias Brinkmann, University of Bayreuth and LMU Munich
(Moderator)

Both economics and philosophy have seen many paradigm shifts over their long histories. The next big challenge is how these disciplines will and should react to the rise of AI. AI is likely to change how researchers operate. But what is the best, and ethically most responsible, way to implement it in research? What special obligations do philosophers and economists have during the advent of AI? How can these disciplines better inform public discussion, and what could their contribution be?

Organized by the Department of Philosophy. All welcome!

... as part of Wittgenstein Lectures 2025...